PUPA 2016

Let 100's of Ideas Bloom

What is Make in India, if there is no making in there! And how anyone can 'make' something, if they never made anything before? This is precisely why we need to have our engineers, students, 'make' something, 'build' something, that too having some monetary value. If one knows how to 'make-to-sell' it is a life lesson.

At KLE Technological University's, KLE-Centre for Technology Innovation and Entrepreneurship (CTIE) has a similar mandate. Working closely with the student front of CTIE, called 'Make in BVB' (MIB), CTIE is enabling and supporting the culture of 'making' in students through PUPA.

PUPA is an accelerated entrepreneurial experience. Under PUPA students are expected to apply their skills and knowledge to transform their idea into a product which is sellable in the market. The ultimate requirement of PUPA is to make student understand, what does it take to build a product for which they will have to find a paying customer. Participating teams are given seed funding to develop and manufacture their product. Products thus developed over 4 weeks of time, are demonstrated and sold before the PUPA product exhibition event.

The event is open for all engineering and management students of KLE University and also for students of other institutions. The main idea behind the PUPA is to encourage the students to understand the product development cycle and marketing activities which are significant in building the start-up culture on campus.

PUPA started in 2013 with 20 teams participating and gained substantial student support. This year over 400 teams registered for PUPA-2016 and about 350 of them demonstrated their products at PUPA demo day held on 1st, Oct 2016. The students shared their experience and challenges faced in making the product with the limited resources given to them. They even shared details of their total sales and profit made in their venture.

The products exhibited by students included both Technical and Non-Technical products. Through this program, students got hands on experience in - product development, marketing activities and optimizing available resources and working as a team to drive results.
