KLE Technological University,
Vidyanagar, Hubli

Sir,

Sub: Technical Collaboration with the Automation and Robotics department for internal projects

We are one of the largest logistics company in India with a very big fleet size consisting of trucks and buses. We have our in-house research and development division for our internal development projects. We have our own problem identification methodology and based on these problems development projects are identified. It would be of great interest to the University and its students to get involved in such problem solving. Hence we want to propose a technical collaboration with your esteemed University and especially the Automation and Robotics department for the development of our internal projects. We feel it will be mutually beneficial to both of us. The faculty and students can choose from the available problems or projects and all the necessary resources like material, components and machinery will be provided by our organisation.

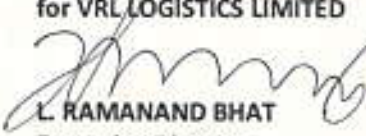

To start with we currently have three projects which are as follows:

1. Development of structural design for pallets.
2. Design and development of painting robots for trucks and buses.
3. Design and development of welding robot for pallets.

We would like to invite you for a technical discussion on the above mentioned projects.

Thanking you

Yours faithfully
for VRL LOGISTICS LIMITED
